

Does Anyone See a Potential Problem Here?

Anyone walking in the vicinity of this construction project must have done a double-take at the questionable positioning of this excavator. Among the potential hazards are the possibilities that the worker in the trench below could be struck by the bucket or boom, or that the excavator could fall into the trench if there was a collapse of concrete or dirt. It is doubtful that his hard hat would make much of a difference. Captain Safety does not approve of this!
